Emergency Preparedness and Response: Career Explorations for Public Health and Health Professional Students

February 27, 2024
Part of the Emergency preparedness and response curriculum & career pathways webinar series
Bdote is a Dakota word that generally means “where two waters come together.” The bdote where Hañáwakpa (Mississippi River) and the Mnísota Wapká (Minnesota River) come together is central to Dakota spirituality and history. This image shared by Sandra Mitchell, Ed.S. Director of Equity and Inclusion at St. Catherine University.
Session Objectives

• Describe the roles and responsibilities of public health professionals whose work is related to emergency preparedness and response

• Articulate the importance of disaster behavioral health planning

• Understand the unique issues related to EPR in a rural setting

• Begin to imagine a career in public health emergency preparedness and response.
Project Support

• This webinar and support for the overall EPR project was made possible through a COVID-19 Public Health Workforce Supplemental Funding grant from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and is being administered by the Minnesota Department of Health.
Moderators and Project Consultants

Jenny Kluznik MPH, MS, PA-C
she/her/hers
Project Consultant
jkluznik@mnprivatecolleges.org

Kathy Berlin RN, PHN
she/her/hers
Project Consultant
Kberlin63@gmail.com
Panelists

Janet Yeats MA, LMFT
Metro/Southeast Regional Behavioral Health Coordinator for the MN Department of Health.

Catherine Harrison RN, MPH
Deputy Director of the Health Emergency Response Office (HERO) at the University of Minnesota

Jodi Budde
Chisago County Emergency Preparedness and Special Projects Coordinator Questions Welcomed!